Unattended Children and Vulnerable Individuals

The Library and its employees do not act "in loco parentis", in the place of guardians. We take seriously the safety of all patrons, especially those most vulnerable. If the child is not being supervised, they may be considered unattended even if a guardian is in the building. A vulnerable individual means a minor and/or an individual with mental or physical impairment or the aged who may be unable to protect themselves from abuse or exploitation or comprehend and comply with Library policies.

In the case of a minor and/or vulnerable individual left at the library unsupervised or after closing, library employees are instructed to proceed as follows:

- Attempts will be made to contact a guardian and explain the concern
- Two employees, including a senior supervisor, will wait no longer than 10 minutes with the person until a guardian arrives
- After 10 minutes, Library employees will call the Tewksbury Police Department to come and take responsibility for the person's safety until the guardian can be located.
- Library employees will, under no circumstances, accompany the person off of the library grounds or transport the individual to any location.
- A copy of this policy will be made available to the parent or guardian so it is understood why these steps were taken.
